Opening Message

Hello everyone!

I would like to start off with some much appreciated thank you's.

For those who have participated in preparation for this years fun filled family reunion event. We always appreciate & welcome additional help, especially from the younger generations. This is your family and one to be quite proud of. Keep it ongoing in this once a year tradition.

See schedule of events and other information for this years reunion located inside this issue. We look forward to seeing you there!

To everyone who have sent in your 2016 Family Directory updates. A special thank you to the Publications Committee for making it all possible in what has also become a tradition every 3 years.

This issue of the Acorn is dedicated to the memory of Uncle Hank Huth (11), who not only was a integral part of our lives, but to the Annual Golf Outing and Huth Family Reunion as well. We will certainly miss him in many ways but will do our best to carry on with his many contributions.

Be well,

Joe Roonan (7) "JR"

Reverend returns to parish ministry

Co-founder of Heart to Heart Communications leaves to serve at St. Vincent de Paul in Akron

By Theresa Cottom

Beacon Journal staff writer

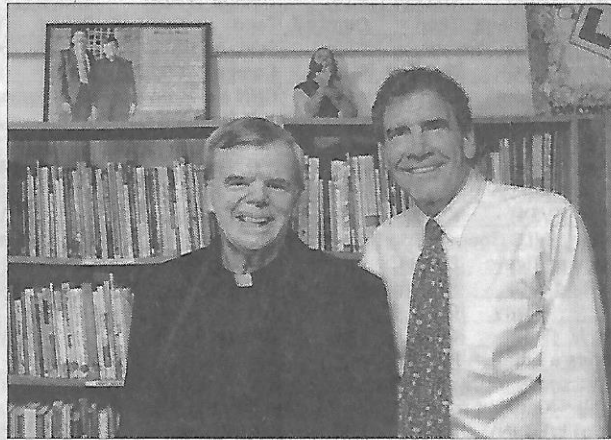

After co-founding Heart to Heart Communications 26 years ago and serving as its executive director the past 17 years, the Rev. Norman K. Douglas is leaving his position to serve as the pastor for St. Vincent de Paul Parish in Akron.

The former pastor of the church resigned March 17 due to declining health. Bishop Richard Lennon of the Catholic Diocese of Cleveland called the next day to tell Douglas to report to the church the following Monday, just in time for Holy Week.

"I love Heart to Heart. I'm glad I'm still in the area, but I love parish ministry," Douglas said. "What I love about it is the variety. I've already been in the preschool sitting down with the kids, I've gone to two nursing homes with the older people, and everybody in between. There's a vitality there."

Douglas grew up in Akron and graduated from North High School. He earned a bachelor's degree in English from the University of Akron and a master of divinity degree from St. Mary Seminary.

He was ordained a Catholic priest for the Diocese of Cleveland in 1974.

In addition to his role with Heart to Heart, Douglas had been serving as a part-time campus minister at the University of Akron.

Though Douglas won't make a daily appearance at the Heart to Heart facilities, the board of directors has granted him executive director emeritus status. Douglas will continue with the organization in an advisory role but will no longer be directly involved in strategic planning.

workplace and personal enrichment programs focused on ways to link ethical values and daily work. The organization has provided service to over 30,000 people.

"People aren't part of just one thing, their job," said George DeBord, chairman of the organization's board of directors. "We have all these different facets to our life, and that inner personal development touches all of those. That's why Heart to Heart is such a great thing."

Though Douglas's resignation was fairly sudden, the organization had been preparing for Douglas to leave for 1½ years. Lennon contacted Douglas back in the fall of 2014 to let him know he'd want Douglas to return to ministry soon.

He will be formally installed as pastor at 5 p.m. on June 11 at a Mass presided by Lennon at St. Vincent. The parish in Akron's West Hill neighborhood counts 919 households in its membership, according to Catholic Charities data.

Heart to Heart doesn't know yet who will replace Douglas as executive director. In fact, members of the board don't know if they'll need a replacement at all.

"We have a very experienced group of people as adjunct faculty that are going to be carrying on in the heart-to-heart way," said Larry Vuillemin, co-founder of the organization.

The organization has started a new facilitator-training program to certify professionals to implement its programs. The first training program was held in December, when nine professionals completed the training.

The organization also recently added a few members to its core staff. Jeremy Lile, the director of operations, will implement Heart to Heart's strategic and business plans, while office manager Sarah Sturbaum will continue to coordinate programs and events, including the annual Greater Akron Speaks Out for Values Breakfast.

"[Lile] and some other young professionals have really connected with us and the mission of Heart to Heart, and that's been really energizing and a real positive move forward," Vuillemin said.

The 23rd annual breakfast will be at 7 a.m. Monday at the John S. Knight Center, 77 E. Mill St. Christopher M. Connor, the executive chairman of the Sherwin Williams Co., will be the keynote speaker. The theme this year is "Spirituality in the Corner Office," which will focus on how God guides and strengthens those in the world of business.

"When you hear that word 'spirituality,' you can tend to think the expression of 'my spiritual self' is limited to some weekend experience of worship," Vuillemin said. "I think what Norm has helped to contribute to Heart to Heart and our community is a greater awareness of the spirituality of everyday life, including our work."
